This is one of the easiest and coolest log cabin variations. It is also a fabriholics dream. Bring strips from as many fabrics as you wish to cut. You will swap with others for as much variety as possible. The more fabric, the more wonderful and funky. The quilt size is entirely up to you. The more log cabins you create, the larger it will grow.

This is not a hand sewing class but if your machine sewing skills are limited, you will still do fine. Wonkiness is encouraged!

Before Class:

Cut strips of fabric in widths ranging from 1½" to 2½". Use a variety of fabrics, preferably prints, some lights, darks and mediums. Solids just won't work as well. If you cut selvage to selvage, you can limit yourself to two or three strips per fabric. Don't worry about matching color or theme. Everyone in the class shares including me (this is my chance to get rid of a huge scrap bag). Here's an opportunity to use "stuff" you never would have bought.

For log centers, cut 3½" squares. Use one to three tone-on-tone or solid fabrics. Cut as many squares as you want but not less than 15.

Class Supplies:

- Sewing machine and extension cord
- Rotary cutter, mat and 24" acrylic ruler
- If you have a used blade for your rotary cutter or a mat knife, bring it to cut the plastic. A non-fabric scissors can work.
- 12" square acrylic ruler
- One sheet of template plastic
- #2 pencil
- Other basic sewing supplies
